

YAYASAN BALI TAKSU INDONESIA

presents

Bali Taksu Film Festival & Awards

The Bali Taksu Indonesia Foundation is a non-profit organization working towards increasing cultural exchange, understanding and collaboration between Indonesia and the world. Their mission is to develop understanding and respect for freedom of expression, human rights and intellectual property rights. The foundation will foster cross-cultural respect and tolerance through script-writing and film-making workshops, seminars and film festivals in cultural centers, museums and other community, educational and cultural venues in Indonesia and abroad.

✿ THE RITES OF PEACE

(Directed and co-written by Marcus Sean McBain)

(Narrated and co-written by Dr Lawrence Blair),

(Executive Producer Mark Tuck, Producer Lucien Thynne in association with One Sky). (35mn) (2006)

The rites of Peace are as old as the rites of War, but few have the staying power of the Madewasraya ritual, practised by the Balinese for over a thousand years. This is the story of the Madewasraya Ceremonies of 2006, the greatest of Balinese Peace Rites which, in troubled times, are carried out to restore harmony between Man, his world and his Gods. Involving more than 100,000 people, six months of preparation, this ceremony took over two months to film, with five separate camera crews.

✿ BIRD-MAN TALE

(AKU INGIN MENCIUMMU SEKALI SAJA)

Garin Nugroho (90 min) (2002)

The film dwells on a Papuan teenage boy (Arnold, 15 years) who meets a woman at the port and is obsessed by desire to kiss her. At the same time, his father (Berthold, 41 years), an activist and cassowary dance instructor, is being hunted down by some unknown people because of his political activities to demand justice for the detention of Theys Eluay, chairman of the Papuan Council Presidium. Arnold's obsession to kiss a woman mysteriously helps the characters in this film find themselves. Garin Nugroho once more displays his amazing mastery at developing a scenario spontaneously with a depth of meaning that awaits the audience's individual interpretation.

A short film of an Expedition of Discovery by a young girl in the Himalayas, the story of young cross-cultural love, Adventures of Exploration in some of the world's wildest terrain by award-winning film makers Jim Norton and Les Guthman, a stunning film odyssey through Vietnam and Cambodia, plus a thought-provoking Indonesian Art Film by Richard Oh about leaving "baggage" behind.

14.15 – 16.30

✿ RITA – A TRUE HIMALAYAN ADVENTURE

(Alison Teal Production) (6 min) (Alison Teal Blehert-Koehn)
(Starring Kaesha Kapur & Maliah Hudson)

Seven-year old Alison has been dragged around the world by her eccentric adventure photographer parents. On a family expedition high in the Himalayas, Alison meets a Sherpa girl named Rita. Although they cannot speak each other's language, the two strangers set off on a wild and touching adventure over a 17,000 ft. pass near the base of Mt. Everest.

✿ 100% SARI

(Directed and written by Cassandra Massardi) (80min)

Sari is a Balinese girl with a busy routine that includes keeping an eye on her father's gallery, working at the internet cafe, learning to dance and attending all kinds of courses. One night she meets Daniel, a DJ who gives her a job so he can go surfing. A love story involves which introduces Sari to the life of the expatriate in Bali and all the complications of a cross-cultural relationship.

❁ THE LOST SUITCASE (KOPER)

(Metafor Pictures) (2006) (Richard Oh)

The Lost Suitcase perfectly illustrates: “Asian cinema-talent, a spirit of innovation, an intelligent film, well shot and well written”—Cinema and Culture of Asia, Jean-Pierre Gimenez.

The film’s intriguing contents include “existential/spiritual ideas, social satire, questions about materialism, dark comedy, symbolism and metaphorical references, human relationships and the lack of meaning in modern life. The nostalgic music from bygone days remind us of times when perhaps things were less confusing.. “the emotional and conditioned ‘baggage’ that we carry with us throughout our lives, some of which be best left behind, lost on the road of life, if we only realized that there is a choice”—Cynthia Webb of the Features News, Gold Coast, Australia.

National Geographic documentary series “Strange Days on Planet Earth”, hosted by Edward Norton, followed by the Indonesian Premiere of “The Red Kebaya”.

14.15 – 17.30

STRANGE DAYS ON PLANET EARTH

Documentary films hosted by Award-winning actor, writer and director Edward Norton.

INVADERS (47 min)

Across the world, plants and animals are silently finding their way into places where they don't belong. These interlopers, called invasive species, have enormous powers — they spread disease, devour our buildings, destroy the very land under our feet.

THE ONE DEGREE FACTOR (47 min)

Dust clouds are building high over the Atlantic. An entire population of caribou declines. Other species are pushed to the limits of their physical survival in the oceans. Rare illnesses become widespread. Are these disparate phenomena linked to global climate change?

PREDATORS (47 min)

Around the world, from the forests of Venezuela to Yellowstone's majestic wilderness to the Caribbean's coral reefs, researchers are discovering predators vital role in the health of our natural systems. Should we learn to live with predators? Can we ?

TROUBLED WATERS (47 min)

Frogs are vanishing in America's heartland. Canadian beluga whales dying in the Saint Lawrence River. Swarms of sea stars are overrunning parts of Australia's Great Barrier Reef. Do these signals indicate that water become a massive delivery system for pollutants?
